

2025/2026 The DEEPMED Seminar: A History Forum for Science, Strategy, and Environment in the Mediterranean Sea

September 17th: Stephen Hall, (Seabed 2030): Towards the First Detailed Global Map of the Ocean Floor: Mapping the Mediterranean from the Earliest Days to the Present.

October 22nd: Petros Kastrinakis, (FORTH Institute for Mediterranean Studies): An Ottoman Port City in Transition: Economy, Society, and Politics in Chania, Crete, During the Long Nineteenth Century.

November 19th: Emiliano Ramieri, (CNR-ISMAR): Challenges and Opportunities for Maritime Spatial Planning in the Mediterranean Sea.

December 17th: Lucia Carminati, (University of Oslo): A Port Against Nature. Water, Land, and the Right to the City in Nineteenth-Century Port Said.

January 21st: Elis Jones, (Technical University of Munich): Ocean health and ocean metabolism: dangers and opportunities.

February 18th: Peder Roberts, (University of Oslo): What was the point of the Bathyscaphe Trieste?

March 18th: Luoise Merquiol, (Aix-Marseille University): Art as an aquatic archive: Reconstructing Italy's socio-biodiversity with paintings.

April 22nd: Arthur Asseraf, (University of Cambridge): Wavy Sovereignty: Radio and the Remaking of Borders in the 20th Century Strait of Gibraltar.

May 13th: Pablo Lima Hernandez, (Universidad de Sevilla-DEEPMED): From the International Biological Programme to the Mediterranean Action Plan: a history of marine systems ecology in the Mediterranean Sea.

June 17th: Aymen Chrigui, (Universidad de Sevilla-DEEPMED): Charting the Depths: Spatial and Historical Perspectives on Mediterranean Bathymetric Research.

All talks are 12h CET. The seminar is hybrid.
You are welcome to come to Room 59 at the Centro Internacional de la Universidad de Sevilla or join online here

Organized by ERC-CoG DEEPMED- 101002330.
Discovering the Deep Mediterranean Environment: A History of Science and Strategy (1860-2020). Universidad de Sevilla.

For more information (and collaborations), please visit our website
All talks will be uploaded to the DEEPMED Youtube channel.

